FARRYL PURKISS
FARRYL PURKISS

Guitar-driven melodies set to poignant, emotional lyrics are the signature of this Durbanite, who's clearly one talented dude. On this, his second album, Purkiss's song-writing capabilities are completely evident and he manages to avoid the pitfalls of the whingeing and blandness that usually come with the genre. Unfussy and truthful, even if you're not into folksy soft rock, you won't help but be moved by his charm.

DJ SBU
Y-LENS VOL 1

The charismatic TV/radio/music mogul and club DJ had enough time to plan his CD and packed it with dance and house tracks as well as "best of" skits from his former YFM radio show Y-Lens. Pity about the Josh Groban hit Remember When It Rained, which is now sung by Wade after he failed to clear the original vocals. The otherwise impressive repertoire includes Roberta Flack's memorable Til The Morning Comes.

GUGU SHEZI
GUGULAM'

Zamajobe owned the number-one spot on my rack in the Afro-pop category with her stunning album Ndawo Yami. This was until I heard Durban-born Gugu Shezi's debut — Gugulam'. The instrumental arrangements are great, it's well produced and the vocals are sung flawlessly. Table for two is my favourite and I also can't get enough of Nkosazana. Shezi is definitely the girl to look out for in 2007.

BROWN DASH
'SKHATHI SAKHONA

From drab overalls to colourful Lacoste shirts, the kwaito star from Soweto has morphed into a stylist. His music and lyrics, although essentially about partying and good times, are evolving too. He flirts with Afro-pop on Ungalah! ithemba, featuring Thembisile, and Phunya (a subtle tribute to Bloem Celtics) is gimmicky and fun. The downside is the album's length, which is only seven songs and four remixes long.
